PREFACE

Over two years have been spent in gathering the material for this book, which was first intended to be a short sketch, but became so interesting and so much data accumulated that it was necessary to enlarge it. But, notwithstanding the time and labour devoted to it, imperfections will appear. There are no perfect histories. Although errors may appear an effort has been made to be as accurate as possible.

It is regrettable that the work was not undertaken by some one years ago, for then many valuable facts could have been preserved which have now passed into tradition.

No mercenary motive has entered into the writing. If a sufficient number of copies are sold to repay the actual cost of printing the authors will be content and will find an ample reward for the time, money and energy spent on it.

THE HERNDON FAMILY

Among the names inscribed on the roll of Battle Abbey as having come with William the Conqueror into Britain, in 1066, is that of Heiroim. He is the ancestor of the family of Herons as they were afterwards called, which, for centuries, were prominent in the affairs of the land of their adoption. One branch of the family, probably to distinguish it from another, assumed the suffix "don" which, according to some, means the "Herons of the Hill," according to others, the "Herons of the Valley."

In 1193, a member of the family journeyed with Richard the III to the Holy Land, for his escutcheon is carved on a stone gateway in the city of Rhodes. A modification of these arms, argent, a heron volant azure, between three escollops sable, is also found in stained glass in Lincoln Inn Chapel, London. Although all branches in this country have a tradition that the first of the name came from Wales, positive proof that they did is lacking; however, they were seated in the county of Kent for nearly seven centuries, and were there as late as the 18th century. It is possible that a branch of this family went into Wales before coming to America.

Hotten mentions Thomas Herndon, aged 23 years, as having sailed on October 13, 1635, aboard the "Amitie" for St. Christophers. John and Rhodes Herndon said by some to be the original emigrants, came to this country early in the 17th century, the one to Virginia the other to North Carolina near Raleigh, where he settled for a time, but a few years later moved to Virginia. The first Herndons to this section of North Carolina were Pomfret, George, Joseph, James, Benjamin, Stephen and John. They located in Orange, Wake and Chatham counties before the Revolution—possibly all fought in the war.

Several of this family suffered persecutions from the Tories under David Fanning. Fanning broke up a session of court at Pittsboro, Chatham County, North Carolina, July 15, 1781, and captured lawyers, justices and other officers of the court, with such of the citizens and prominent men in the place as he wanted. He swore the Rebels would never hold court there again; records of county and Superior Court were destroyed by fire. He left Pittsboro immediately with his prisoners for Wilmington. Among these prisoners were: James Herndon, Joseph Herndon, George Herndon Ramsey and General Ambrose Ramsey. During the month of August Fanning's men visited the home of John Herndon (of the Revolution), and destroyed personal property. On account of the Tories John Herndon left his home near Deep River and bought an estate from his nephew, John Booker, eight miles from Chapel Hill (in Chatham County), which he called "Mill Hill," where he lived until his death in the year 1827.

Anthony Street was born in Winchester, Tenn., youngest child of William and Elizabeth (Herndon) Street. His father died when he was a young boy; left a large estate among his five children. Anthony was educated, I believe at Lebanon, Tenn., Cumberland University; studied law but never practiced. Mother of Elizabeth Street and Anthony, as well as sister, Mrs. J. C. Doherty, left the old estate near Winchester and went on large plantation in Mississippi, about nine miles from Memphis, where Elizabeth (Herndon) Street died in 1844. He married Frances Henderson Gillespie in October, 1843, at Winchester, Tenn. Shortly after his mother's death in 1844 he removed to Memphis, where he engaged in the mercantile business with his brother-in-law, J. C. Doherty. Afterwards he went into the manufacturing and foundry business. At the beginning of the War Between the States he turned his plant into a munitions factory for the Confederacy. This was situated on the old Navy Yard in Memphis, on which he had a ninety-nine year lease from the Government. He was an ardent States Rights man, and gave not only means, but time to the cause of the South. When Memphis was taken by the Federal troops his plant was the second place on which the Union Flag was raised, the first being the postoffice. His family was one of the thirty-four prominent families who were given three days time to leave Memphis, by an order of General Sherman, October 20, 1862. The family joined A. Street in Montgomery, Ala., at that time the Confederate capital. He staked all and lost all on the Confederacy. In 1866 he removed with his family to Batesville, Arkansas.

Elizabeth (Herndon) Street, her son Edwin, and her daughter Sarah (Street) Doherty, and a number of her grandchildren are buried in Elmwood Cemetery, Memphis, Tennessee.

THE DIGGES FAMILY

The Digges family is most ancient and honorable. Virginians and Episcopalian need not wish to go further back than to Hon. Dudley Digges one of the most active members of that most noble and Christian association, the London Company, far more a missionary institution than any of that day. The minutes of the London Company show him to have ever been at his post in the meetings of the committee, with such men as the Earl of Southampton, the Ferrars and others. The name of Digges was soon transferred to Virginia. We read of Digges Hundred among the early settlements on James River. We read in 1654, of Edward Digges made one of the Council and so approving himself in that office as to be called to preside over the Colony, and then at the expiration of his term to be requested to continue in it as long as he continued in the country, with other marks of distinction. One of the descendants of the Digges who died in 1700 was named Cole Digges, a man of large property, owning Chilham Castle near York, Bellfield on York River, between York and Williamsburg and Dudley. Among his grandchildren were: William who married his cousin Elizabeth of Denbigh; Dudley, who married Cousin Louise; Thomas and Edward moved to Fauquier and had families. One granddaughter married a Mr. Powell of Petersburg. Two married Fitzhughs of Fauquier. The first wife of the first Dudley was a Miss Armistead, second Miss Wormly of Rosegill. He had two sons Cole and Dudley and several daughters, one of whom married a Burwell, another a Strarron of Eastern Shore, Virginia, and a third a Digges and two married Nicholas. One daughter of the first Cole Digges married Nathaniel Harrison of Brandon, another Nathaniel Harrison of Wakefield. Sir Edwin Sandys, Sir Dudley Digges, Sir John Saville, with several other members of the London Company were considered the most elegant scholars and the most eloquent speakers in the nation. They lived more in York County, their two seats Chilham near Yorktown and Bellfield some miles higher up the river 8 miles from Williamsburg.

Taken from Meades Old Churches and Families of Virginia.

Sir Dudley Digges, of Chilham Castle, Kent, England, was the son of General Thomas Digges, of Digges Court, Kent, who married Ann (daughter of Sir Warham St. Leger, Knight of Ulcombe), and was buried at Chilham in 1505; he was the son of Leonard Digges, Esq., of Woolton Court, in Kent, "of the most eminent people who flourished in Great Britain and Ireland and a famous mathematician in the time of the sixth Edward and Queen Mary," who married Sarah, sister of Sir James Wilsford.

Sir Dudley Digges, heir of his father, was an eminent lawyer, master of the Rolls and member of Virginia Company of London. He married Mary, youngest daughter and co-heir of Sir Thomas Kemp, Knight of Clautigh, by whom he acquired Chilham Castle. This probably meant the estate, for later is found this statement on the same authority:

Chilham Castle, built by Sir Dudley Digges in the time of Charles I, is no longer in the family, but it was one of the great houses of Kent in its day. Over the entrance was the compelling announcement—"The Lord is my defense and my castle—Dudley Digges and Mary Kemp."

Sir Dudley Digges was a public spirited gentleman. He aided Henry Hudson when he sailed for the Northwest and Cape Digges and Digges Island were named for him. He was one of several who purchased the Bermuda Islands from the Virginia Company. "Digges Two Hundred" was planted in Virginia about 1613, he was a member of Parliament Tewkesbury in 1614-24-25. He is said to have advanced constantly the welfare of Virginia. Was Ambassador to Russia in 1618, one of the Commissioners to conduct the impeachment of Buckingham in 1626, and in 1619 he was also one of a committee "concerning the College of Virginia, being a mighty business and so great that an account of their proceedings therein must be given to the State." This last mention of Sir Dudley, with Virginia is particularly interesting inasmuch as the Colonial Dames are about to memorialize this "College in Virginia" by a monument at Dutch Gape and Sir Dudley Digges seems the only one of this committee to have descendants in Virginia.

Sir Dudley Digges' Ancestor through Magna Charta claims for Herndon descendants:

THE HUNT FAMILY

The Hunt family has been prominent in the British Empire and in America, its members having played important rôles in war and peace. Family pride is a commendable trait and should be cultivated. All Hunts have just cause to be proud of their family history and traditions.

A number of titled Hunt families are listed in Burke's General Armory. The progenitor of the Hunt Family was an officer in the Army of William the Conqueror. He spoke both French and German. After the Battle of Hastings and the conquest of England, for his services he received some lands in the north of England, where he settled down to peaceful pursuits, married a British maiden, and founded the present Hunt Family. Robert le Hunt was in Lancashire, A.D. 1327.

About the year 1540 a member of the family traveled over much of England in the interests of the common people. This family is said to have supported Cromwell and the Puritans in the great conquests between the Lords and Commons.

In about 1600 three Hunt brothers came from North England to New York. One of them settled in Rochester. Wilson Price Hunt, of Trenton, N. J., of this line was John Jacob Astor's most trusted man in the company that founded Astoria, Oregon, April 12, 1811, and was the first white man to be buried at the mouth of the Columbia River. His descendants live mostly in Oregon and Washington. The two other brothers went to North Carolina and founded families, descendants live in different southern states.

The Hunts who came from the British Isles to America continued in the faith of their fathers, for the most part, though their descendants in this country today will be found in the memberships of practically all the various churches. It is estimated that of all the Hunts in America who are church members, at least ninety-seven per cent are of the Protestant faith.

The Hunt Coat of Arms has been in use by the Hunt family for many centuries. It has been especially used by the Hunts of Devonshire. The Hunts of Longnor, County Salop, and other branches of the family our motto is different from some. One of the oldest is the same description but the motto is Semper Fidelis (always faithful). From Hunt records.

Hunt is from the Saxon word "hunti," a wolf. At one time, in the history of Great Britain, this destructive animal so abounded that it was the business of every man to assist in exterminating it. To this end the taxes in some countries were levied in wolves' ears. Hence the word "hunting," at first only meant pursuing wolves. Afterwards it came to mean the pursuit of game generally. From prowess in the hunting field, the name came to be adopted as that of a family.

One of the first of the name, of whom any record exists, was Adam le Hunt, who lived at Nottingham, England, in 1295. Ralph le Hunt, who refused the offer of Knighthood, lived in the Fourteenth Century. In the time of Henry VIII, Hunts were living in Yorkshire.

The first Earl of Huntingdon received his title in return for services rendered in the restoration of Malcom III, on the defeat of the famous Macbeth in 1057. His son, Waldeof, married a niece of William the Conqueror. Their daughter married David, a brother of St. Maud, Queen of England. He became King of Scotland.

The Southern pioneer was Thomas Hunt, born in Buckingham. He was living in North Carolina in 1669.

Among Hunts who are renowned in various ways, as writers, poets, artists, or professional men, Leigh Hunt's name must at once occur to every one. He was not only a poet, but also one of the most delightful of English essayists.

The motto of the Hunt Coat of Arms is "Virtute Parta Tue-mini" "Defend what is acquired with Valor" or "Protect your Family with Valor." The description, Per pale argent and sable, a saltire counter changed. Crest—A lion's head erased per pale, argent and sable, collared gules lined and ringed or. Burke's Armory.

It is said that the first minister to Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607, Robert Hunt, was an ancestor of the Vance and Granville County, North Carolina, Hunts, although the connecting link has not been traced. He was a man of splendid character. In history we find much said of his hardships in establishing the church of England at Jamestown. The Robert Hunt Shrine at Jamestown is a bas-relief of the First Communion, celebrated June 21, 1607. The inscription on the tablet is: "To the Glory of God in Memory of the Reverend Robert Hunt, Presbyter. Appointed by the Church of England minister of the colony which established the English Church and English civilization at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607.

His people, members of the colony, left this testimony concerning him: 'He was an honest, religious and courageous divine. He preferred the service of God in so good a voyage to every thought of ease at home. He endured every privation, yet none ever heard him repine. During his life our factions were oft healed and our greatest extremities so comforted that they seemed easy in comparison with what we endured after his memorable death. We all received from him the Holy Communion together as a pledge of reconciliation, for we all love him for his exceeding goodness. He planted the first Protestant church in America and laid down his life in the foundation of Virginia.'" Mr. Hunt had taken his library with him, which under the circumstances was precious indeed; this together with everything he possessed was destroyed in the fire which consumed the church and all but a few houses. In the Virginia Magazine is the Will of Robert Hunt of the parishes of Heathfield in the County of Sussex, Clarke, Vicar of the said parish. Dated 20th of November, 1606, Proved 14 July, 1608. Mentions wife Elizabeth, daughter Elizabeth who was not eighteen and his son Thomas who was not twenty-one at the time will was written and Brother Stephen.

That the Hunt family was one of the prominent families of Colonial days is known by all students of our early history. Francis Marion Hutcheson, of Kentucky, said "The Hunt men were devoted husbands and fathers, full of civic pride, and good providers, bearing their responsibilities to the community and nation bravely." They were men of determination and courage. They were reared strong Christians.

Granville County, North Carolina, was formed in 1746, so the record of John Hunt the first and his wife, Mourning, begin then. There is very little recorded about John Hunt except a few deeds. They lived on the Goshen Road five miles from Oxford, the county-seat of Granville; the old house still stands. John Hunt died before 1768, as a deed is recorded where Mourning Hunt sold land and only her name is signed to deed. May 27, 1778, Mourning Hunt married William Hicks, a widower, he died in 1797. At their marriage each agreed to leave their own property to his and her children. Mourning Hunt Hicks died November, 1823. Book 9, page 246. Children of John and Mourning Hunt were: (1) John married Frances Penn (later); (2) James married Ann Satterwhite, July 26, 1785; children: Michael and Frances; (3) Samuel Hunt, son of John and Mourning Hunt, was born 1758, died 1798, married in Granville County, to Sarah Howard, May 20, 1780, (child George).

2. John Hunt born in Granville County, March 12, 1752, died August, 1818, married Frances Penn, August 5, 1771, daughter of Joseph and Mary Taylor Penn (see Taylor Family). She was born in Caroline County, Virginia, January 30, 1756. She was double first cousin to John Penn, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Frances was only fifteen when married, her Grandfather, John Taylor, gave his permission which is recorded as follows:

THE TAYLOR FAMILY

The Taylor family is one of historic interest and dignity, and has been closely associated with the development of this country from its earliest colonial struggles. James Taylor of Caroline County, Virginia, born in 1635, near Carlisle, England, came to the Colony in 1665 and settled in Caroline County, and died in Virginia in 1698. Carlisle was but 20 miles from Pennington, the old ancestral home, and where his forefathers were buried. James Taylor, first, was a large landowner and prominent in the colony. A seal ring which belonged to him and which bore the crest and motto of the Taylor Arms, has been handed down to the present generation, and with this seal ring has also descended a legend to the effect that on a certain occasion the King of England was enjoying a chase in one of the royal forests when a wild boar, hard driven, turned upon the royal huntsman, whereupon there sprang to his defense one of his knights who slew the boar. The King out of gratitude gave this knight a crest, with the motto "Consequitur quod cunque petit." (See Wingfield's History of Caroline County, Virginia.)

James Taylor, first, the emigrant, spent the rest of his life in Drysdale Parish, and died April 30, 1698. (Special to Times Dispatch)

Etna Mills, Va., Dec., 12,—That was a beautiful custom, the old-time Virginian had of naming his plantation, a custom that came from England, and that was a practice till the beginning of the Civil War. As a general rule, farms of a small area had no names. It was the large domain or plantation that was dignified with a cognomen. These plantations embraced thousands of acres of land within their limits, and most generally were ancestral homes of the residents or owners, and might properly be called "baronial homes" or plantations. They were worked by hundreds of negro slaves, who were born and bred upon them, living in log cabins, commonly called quarters, which were built a convenient distance from the mansion house of the master.

"HORN QUARTER"

Perhaps there could not be found in Virginia or even in any other Southern State a more beautiful, productive and historical estate than "Horn Quarter," in King William County, on the Pamunkey River, formerly the home of the Pendletons, Penns and later of the Taylors, of Caroline County. At the breaking out of the Civil War this noted home was owned by George Taylor, the son of John Taylor, of Caroline County, who was a signer of the Declaration of Independence and a Revolutionary officer of Caroline County, a distinguished statesman, lawyer and agricultural writer, and also the author of political works which stood high in their day. He was a man who succeeded in everything he undertook.

William Penn, a son of John Penn, also a signer of the Declaration of Independence, traded with a Mr. Nelson for "Horn Quarter," probably in 1795. William Penn was the brother of George Taylor's mother, wife of John Taylor, of Caroline. The farm came into the Taylor family through the death of William Penn, who died unmarried.

John Taylor, of Caroline County, gave "Horn Quarter" to Dr. John Taylor, his eldest son, and "Hanover Quarter" just across the Pamunkey River, in Hanover County, to Edmund Taylor. Dr. John Taylor sold "Horn Quarter" to his brother, Edmund Taylor, and John Taylor, the father of George Taylor, hired this property from him (Edmund), as he died without children. George Taylor had five brothers and one sister—William Randolph, George, Robert, Randolph, Catherine Randolph, and Henry. The four first died young. George Taylor, the ante-bellum owner of "Horn Quarter" first married Catherine Randolph, April 20, 1826. His children by her were Lucy P., now Mrs. C. C. Lee of Franklin County, who married a brother of General R. E. Lee; Ann Randolph, who married S. D. Whittle, now dead; Betsy Moore (dead), who married John Gilliam; William Randolph Taylor, who died August, 1845; George, who died in 1841; John Penn Taylor, who died April 30, 1908; Robert Randolph, who died 1840; Catherine Randolph, died 1843; William Henry Taylor, died 1867; Catherine Randolph Taylor, first wife of George Taylor, died January 13, 1865.

George Taylor's second marriage was with Hennie Pendleton, March 5, 1868, by whom he had one child, Sallie Penn Taylor, now Mrs. Sallie P. Turner, of Port Royal, Caroline County, Va.

A GREAT ESTATE

George Taylor owned over 500 slaves, who worked on his various farms—"Horn Quarter" plantation, containing 1,500 acres; "Hazelwood," in Caroline County, on the Rappahannock River, 1,900 acres, now owned by Mrs. Hennie Taylor; "Bleak Hill," farm adjoining "Horn Quarter," 1,656 acres, and "Hanover Quarter," 1,000 acres.

William Penn first owned the "Horn Quarter" farm and the place derived its name from the fact that at that point the horn was blown for the assembly of the slaves at the beginning of the day's work. It should be remarked that William Penn, who first owned "Horn Quarter" was the brother-in-law of John Taylor, of Caroline. John Taylor built "Horn Quarter" mansion at the cost of $60,000, bringing his architect from England, laid off the grounds and beautified it with exotic trees and shrubbery. "Horn Quarter" contains the burial ground or cemetery of the Taylor family. A monument on it contains the following:

Our William,

AETVI

The record of man

We commit his name

to

The register of God his virtues.

The beauty and magnificence of the "Horn Quarter" plantation may be realized by visiting there. The furnishings of this home-stead was in perfect keeping and harmony with the building itself and the adjoining grounds.

George Taylor was a staunch Confederate in feeling, but was too old for active service. Being worth over $1,000,000, of his great means he gave liberally to the Confederacy—equipped an entire military company of King William County, known as the "Taylor Grays," and gave large amounts of money to every company sent out by Hanover, King William and Caroline counties in the army service. During the Civil War he plowed and sowed the grain of his poorer neighbors, who were soldiers in the army. No soldier ever so humble left "Horn Quarter" hungry. When the war commenced he had his last year's crop of wheat in his barns; this he gave to the Confederate government for a nominal sum, when he could have realized ten times the value received from the government. Having a large sum of money—$200,000—deposited in the banks of Richmond, he was advised to transfer his money to England for safekeeping, but he refused saying the government needed it, and he would stand or fall by the Confederacy. If ever a man deserved a monument or memorial at the hands of his countrymen for his service to the public in the time of war, that man was certainly George Taylor, of "Horn Quarter," who lies buried there without a stone to mark his grave.

Since the death of Taylor, the plantation has changed ownership several times. The ruthless hand of time had left its work, the mansion had gone somewhat into decay, but a few years ago it came into possession of Mr. H. B. Smith, Jr., of Chicago, a man of wealth, with an appreciation of what is beautiful and artistic, who restored the place in every respect to its former position of one of the most beautiful and well-kept estates of the Old Dominion.

"Richard Gregory was Vestryman in Gloucester County in 1677, and may have been the same as Richard Gregory (No. 2). The connection between him and the next Gregory, of whom we find record, is unknown. John Gregory, tailor, one of the conspirators in the Rebellion of 1674, in Surrey County, was probably distant from John Gregory, pastor of the Upper Parish, Nansemond County, in 1680. Robert Bishop, of Rappahannock, by will, April 21, 1676, left all of his estate to John Gregory, Jr. John Gregory, the elder, Vestryman of Sittenbourne Parish, 1665, had: wife, Elizabeth; sons, John and Richard; daughter, Mary; married in 1682, James Taylor, the immigrant, ancestor of President Taylor."—Richmond Times-Dispatch, December 4, 1904.

The will of John Gregory, dated December 18, 1677, probated in Rappahannock County, September 4, 1678, names as legatees: Sister, Mary Gregory, to whom 480 acres, "being a tract formerly bought by Robert Bishop of Mr. Henry Ambrey; also one pied cow; Mildred Willis, late Mildred Gregory, now (December 15, 1739), wife of Henry Willis, of Spotsylvania, Gent., by indenture of January 5, 1733, between; said Henry Willis, of the first part; said Mildred of the second part, and John Washington, of Gloucester County, of the third part, relating that a marriage was speedily to be solemnized between said Henry and said Mildred; said Mildred, in pursuance of authority reserved by said indenture, etc.; my son Lewis Willis, etc.; said Henry Willis, my husband, etc.; my three daughters; Frances, wife of Francis Thornton, Jr.; Mildred and Elizabeth. Witnesses: Augustine Washington, John Taliaferro." (Spotsylvania Deed Book C, December 15, 1739.)

Mildred Washington married first, Roger Gregory; second, Henry Willis. She was sister of John and Augustine Washington and aunt of General George Washington.

"George Washington, President of the United States, was born ye 11th day of February, 1731/2, about 10 in the morning and was baptized the 5th of April following, Mr. Beverley Whiting and Captain Christopher Brooks godfather, and Mrs. Mildred Gregory godmother." Hayden, p. 81.

From the above records it appears that:

1. John Gregory, the elder, Vestryman of Sittenbourne Parish, 1665, married Elizabeth ..... and had:

(1) John, will probated September 4, 1678, in Rappahannock.

(2) Richard, Justice of King and Queen County, 1699.

(3) Mary, legatee to her brother John, married James Taylor I (see Taylor family).

(4) Elizabeth, legatee to her brother John, married Thomas Edmundson.

2. Richard Gregory, Justice of King and Queen County, Va., 1665, married Elizabeth ..... and had:

(1) Roger, born in 1690, died prior to 1732; married Mildred Washington, born in 1696, died September 5, 1747, daughter of Lawrence and Mildred Warner Washington; she married second, January 5, 1733, Col. Henry Willis.

(2) Richard, married ..... West. Roger Gregory and Mildred Washington had issue:

(a) Frances married 1736 Francis Thornton.

(b) Mildred married 1740 John Thornton.

(c) Elizabeth married 1743 Henry Willis, Jr.

Roger Gregory and Mildred, his wife, deeded May 17, 1726, the Mount Vernon estate to her brother, Augustine Washington. Roger Gregory, Gent., lived in Stratton Major Parish, King and Queen County. The witnesses to this deed were: William Aylett, John Washington and Lawrence Butler.

A fact especially worthy of mention is that Col. James Taylor, second, and his wife, Martha Thompson, enjoy the absolutely unique honor of having been great-grandparents of two very distinguished Presidents of the United States, viz.: James Madison, the "Father of the Constitution," and Zachary Taylor, the hero of Palo Alto, Monterey and Beuna Vista. Many others of their descendants have attained great prominence as statesmen, and in the fields of science, literature, medicine and jurisprudence.

THE PENDLETON FAMILY.

The Pendletons of Virginia are descended from Philip Pendleton, who with his brother, the Rev. Nathaniel Pendleton, came from Lancashire, England, to Virginia, in 1676, and settled in that part of the State which afterwards became Caroline County.

The Pendleton Arms bears the following inscription: "Arms-Gu. an inescutcheon arg. between ~~two~~ <sup>two</sup> escallop shells in saltire or. ~~garter~~ <sup>garter</sup>

"Crest: On a chapeau gu. turned up ermine a demi-dragon, wings inverted or holding an escallop shell arg."

Henry Pendleton, of Norwich, England, had two sons, Nathaniel and Philip Pendleton. Nathaniel was a minister of the Established Church of England and died without issue. Philip, the second son, was born in England about 1650, and emigrated to Virginia in 1676. He married Isabella Hart and had three sons and four daughters. Henry Pendleton, the eldest son, was born in 1683 in King and Queen County, Virginia, and died May, 1721. He married Mary, daughter of James Taylor, and his second wife, Mary Gregory. At the time of the marriage Mary Taylor was aged thirteen and Philip eighteen. Issue: (1) James Pendleton, of Drysdale Parish, King and Queen County, who married Mary Lyell, widow, of Lancaster County, in 1727-28. Sheriff of Culpeper County in 1753; died in 1763; (2) Philip Pendleton; (3) Nathaniel Pendleton; (4) John; (5) Edmund (see Caroline County History for life of Judge Edmund Pendleton, born 1721, died 1802; (6) Catherine Isabel Pendleton married Wm. H. Gaines and was the grandmother of General Edmund Pendleton Gaines of the United States Army. John Pendleton was one of the Committee of Hanover in 1775. Catherine Pendleton, sister of Edmund and daughter of Philip and Isabella (Hart) Pendleton, was born December 8, 1699; was married to John Taylor February 14, 1716; died July 26, 1774. John Taylor was a son of James Taylor and his second wife Mary Gregory. (For issue see Taylor Family.)

PENN FAMILY.

The Penns are descended from King Edward III. The name of Penn is a very ancient one in England, dating in fact not only behind the Normand, but even the Saxon Conquest, as the word, a distinctly British appellation, which signifies a top, hill crest, or summitt, occurs in this sense in many different and widely separated parts of the kingdom.

JOHN PENN.

So far the Penns of Virginia and William Penn's family of Pennsylvania, have not been connected, although John and William are names in each family.

The Penn Coat of Arms is described as follows: Argent, on a fesse sable, three plates.

Crest: A demi lion rampant, argent gorged with a collar sable. Charged with three plates.

Unknown are many of the real builders of the county, the men who with axe and hoe, smote the forests and turned a wilderness into towns, farms into gardens, lie mostly in unremembered graves. Few of the thousands who wrought unselfishly in carving the county from the heritage of the woods, achieved distinction. Pity it is that the pages of the Recording Angel are not accessible to the historian, for many a hero and heroine, whose deeds are doubtless recorded in letters of gold, will have to be passed by with not even a word.

Among the citizens of Granville County who became prominent in the national life of our country in Revolutionary days, was John Penn, lawyer, statesman, member of the Continental Congress, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence from North Carolina, who was born in Caroline County, Virginia, May 17, 1741. He was the son of Moses and Catherine Taylor Penn.

In 1774 he removed to Williamsboro, Granville County, N. C. The year after this he was chosen by the citizens of Granville County to represent them in Provincial Congress. His pleasing address and facility of expression won the instant favor of the Congress, and he was placed on many important committees, being selected as one of three men, during the Revolution, upon whom were conferred all war powers for North Carolina.

John Penn was a delegate to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, and his superior social tastes were quickly recognized by his colleagues in this congress.

John Penn was married July 8, 1763, to Susannah Lyne, and while to this union three children were born, only two were mentioned in his will, these being William and Lucy, who married the famous John Taylor of Caroline. (For their children see Taylor Family.)

John Penn died in September, 1788, in Granville County, and was buried at the home place in Granville County. In 1894 his remains were reinterred at Guilford Battle Ground, but the remains of his wife were left, and the John Penn Chapter has arranged to mark her grave with an appropriate stone. Near the site of the old Penn home is the historical John Penn spring surrounded by heavy woods.

The will of John Penn was probated in Granville County in 1788, and in it he mentions his two children, William and Lucy. William Penn died unmarried; Lucy married Colonel Taylor and left descendants. (Granville County Historical Society.)

THE BOOTH FAMILY

ALLIED LINE OF JOHN HERNDON AND CATHERINE NELSON

In the year 1066, the de la Booths accompanied William the Conqueror to England. Evidences show that when William the Conqueror was distributing the confiscated English lands among his followers of rank, among others, who were recipients, were the de la Booths, to whom was given lands, "to have and to hold by the same right and title as that possessed by the King and Queen—the right to title and possession through conquest by the sword." He also conferred on the de la Booths his Coat-of-Arms "to have and to hold, so long as the name of Booth shall exist, because ye are of my blood."

Prior to 1066, the records justify the conclusion that the Booths came to Normandy from Scandinavia under Rollo late in the ninth century. All the Booths of England are descendants of those that came from France with William the Conqueror in 1066.

From evidence obtainable it appears that there were four brothers, sons of William Booth of Cheshire, who came to America about 1639. Their names were Humphrey, John, Robert and Richard (extracts from Booth History by Dr. John T. Booth).

Richard Booth, born 1607, came to America in 1639, original settler, Stratford, Connecticut; married Elizabeth Hawley, settled later in North Carolina on Chowan River. Their son, Joseph Booth, born 1656; died 1703; married Hannah Wilcox. Zachariah Booth, born 1694; died 1762; married Anna Curtis. Daniel Booth, born 1723; died 1801; married Priscilla ..... Will of Daniel Booth, fourth in line from the immigrant, Will Book D, page 78, August, 1802. Hillsboro, Orange County, North Carolina Records. Mentions wife Prisley and sons: Gray, John, Mark, Tarpley, Joseph, Daniel, Solomon and Alfred; daughters—Sarah Dixon, Ruth, Polly, Betty, Sylvia, Ritty (Harriett) and Patty.

TUCKER

THE TUCKER FAMILY

ALLIED LINE OF JOHN HERNDON AND KATHERINE NELSON

GENEALOGY OF THE TUCKER FAMILY

By Ephriham Tucker.

(From William and Mary College Magazine.)

In the preparation of this genealogy the author has done faithful service to the New England branch of the Tucker family, deducing from Robert Tucker (1604-1682), of Milton in Kent, England, and Weymouth and Milton, Massachusetts, of whose descendants, embracing a great number of other family names, many of them prominent, the book contains an exhaustive record.

Such a work can result only from patient effort in the accumulation of data combined with loving interest and honest family pride. Of these, Mr. Tucker's book bears every evidence, for which the descendants of Robert Tucker, of Massachusetts, should be proportionately grateful.

With these words of commendation for the body of the book, it will not appear ungracious to call attention to certain errors which treat of the Tucker Family in England.

The arms depicted as those of Tucker of Devon were granted in 1538 to Robert Tucker of Exeter, county Devon, and could be borne only by those proving descent from him in the Limeston, county Devon, and Helland, county Cornwall, lines. The date 1079, given for the grant of these arms is of course erroneous, 1079 being the number of the Harlian MS., in which the record is preserved, not the date of the grant. While the Tuckers of Kent may have descended from this Robert, still the arms appertaining to Tucker of Milton, county Kent, are:

Az. a chevron or between three sea horses ar.

Crest, a lion's gamb. erased gu. holding a battle-axe head ar. handled or. Motto: Auspice Teucro.

These arms were used by the senior branch of the Milton stock, which went to Bermuda, through which distinguished line was descended Judge St. George Tucker, of Virginia (1752-1827). The conjecture, given with others that the origin of the Tucker name may be found in Teucer, King of Troy, seems to be amusingly borne out by the motto (Auspice Teucro) of the Virginia and Bermuda Tuckers.

Though the deductions is rightly given elsewhere, there is a grave error on page 15 in what purports to be the pedigree from the visitation of Kent in 1619. This gives all the children of George Tucker (second of the name) as born of his marriage with Elizabeth Stoughton, and assigns his second wife, Mary Darel (not Darrett), to his son George Tucker (third of the name). The correct statement, which is that given by the visitation in question, is that George Tucker (second), of Milton, county Kent, married first, Elizabeth, daughter of Francis Stoughton, by whom he had an only son and heir, George Tucker (third) "aet 25, 1619" (from which descends the distinguished Bermuda, Virginia and India line), and that he married secondly, Mary, daughter of John Darel, of Calehill, by whom he had with five daughters, three other sons the second of whom was Robert, the Massachusetts settler. This would seem to dispose of the suggestion made in the footnote that Stoughton, Massachusetts, received its name on account of Robert Tucker's connection with the Stoughton family. The connection is simply in the fact that his father's first wife was of that stock. The town doubtless took its name from some member of the Stoughton family, which was early settled in the colony.

Though the book is devoted almost exclusively to the descendants of Robert Tucker, of Massachusetts, there are a few detached notes of interest relating to others of the name, among these being Thomas Tudor Tucker, Treasurer of the United States from 1891 (not 1794, as stated) to 1828; his brother, St. George Tucker, Judge of the United States District Court, and the latter's two sons, the Judges Henry St. George and Beverly Tucker. There is also a brief note of Judge St. George Tucker's great-niece Charlotte Maria (not Bronte) Tucker, widely known as an author over the non-de-plume of "A. L. O. E." (a lady of England), who was long a missionary in India. Of this lady, who was a daughter of Henry St. George Tucker, Esq., chairman of the Honorable East India Company, an extended biography by Miss Agnes Giberne has been published.
